Bad Taste? - capsules don't have a bad taste, and are small & easy to swallow.

Apple Cider Vinegar (ACV) is produced by allowing either crushed apples or simply apple juice to ferment. The sugars in the apple or juice turn into alcohol and then to acetic acid – a key ingredient in apple cider vinegar that is also responsible for giving it the sour taste.

As a dietary supplement, all other ACV products are simply composed of acetic acid (ranging from 1.04% to 10.57%) and many ACV dietary supplements may not be ACV at all. Raw-Unfiltered Apple Cider Vinegar from Enzymedica is a true full-spectrum ACV concentrate that is unique as one dose is equal to one fluid ounce of high quality raw apple cider vinegar.

In contrast to pills, most popular ACV liquids contain brown particles of sediment called the "Mother." The compounds in the Mother are believed to be the source of the real magic of ACV. This Mother is composed of flavonoids and other phenolic compounds, enzymes, trace minerals, and various byproducts created from fermentation. Raw-Unfiltered Apple Cider Vinegar provides not only a consistent level of acetic acid, but also all of the Mother components inherent to a high-quality ACV.

Many of the benefits of apple cider vinegar have more to do with the Mother compounds than the acetic acid, especially as it relates to the effects in supporting digestion and weight loss*. Some of the effects are related to acetic acid as other studies show that adding any vinegar yields beneficial effects in these areas, but there are some studies that indicate ACV has additional health benefits presumably due to Mother components.

"I believe that nature knows best. Unlike other ACV capsules that may only contain acetic acid without the mother, this formula contains many synergistic compounds provided by nature."
